"where anybody might win the race!"

Come out for the eighth annual running of one of very few trail races on the east coast with an age graded start. Top age group performers have a legitimate shot at the overall title. Even if you aren't out to win, the race is run on challenging yet very runnable trails in beautiful Nolde Forest, has great swag and virtually no bottle necks. Challenge your families, friends and coworkers to come out and compete on a "level" playing field. Hey ringers: Here's a chance to show off a little by passing the whole pack! The top 10 overall finishers in recent years have a good mix men and women in many different age groups.

What's an age graded start? Those who have more than a few grey hairs or have yet to hit puberty will get a head start based on age and gender. Typically the oldest female wave starts first. Then the next wave will start, based on 5 year age groups, working back toward the younger (faster?) folks. Wave starts bounce back and forth between sexes, as the handicap derived from the World Masters Association dictates. The youngest runners also get a head start. The actual handicap for each age division is posted at www.PagodaPacers.com. That means you start with your age group which may or may not start with another handicap division. For example, it's possible that 60-64 year old men might start at the same time as 50-54 year old women. Or maybe not...

***The 2017 Edition Includes*****

- 1) Huge post race raffle will include a pair of Southwest Airline tickets
- 2) Nolde Forest favorite trail Middle Road and an off trail scramble at the end.
- 3) Much better swag than most other races (this year it might be a tech-shirt...)
