"where anybody might win the race!"

Come out for the seventh annual running of one of very few trail races with an age graded start on the east coast. Top age group performers have a legitimate shot at the overall title. Even if you aren't out to win, the race is run on challenging yet very runnable trails in beautiful Nolde Forest, has great swag and is for a great cause. Challenge your families and coworkers to come out and compete on a "level" playing field... Hey ringers: Here's a chance to show off a little by passing the whole pack! The top 10 finishers in recent year's races have had between 6 and 10 different age groups often with an equal split of men and women.

What's an age graded start. Those who have more than a few of grey hairs (or have yet to hit puberty) will get a head start based on age and gender. The oldest female wave (70+, c'mon Grandma!) starts first. Then the next wave will start, based on 5 year age groups, working back toward the younger (faster?) folks. Wave starts will bounce back and forth between sexes, as the handicap derived from the World Masters Association dictates. The actual handicap for each division is posted at www.PagodaPacers.com and will be final one month prior to start. Your handicap division may or may not start with another handicap division. For example, it's possible that 60-64 year old men might start at the same time as 50-54 year old women. Or maybe not...

The 2016 Edition Includes
